Re: IP-Enabled Services, WC Docket No. 04-36; E911 Requirements for IP-Enabled Service Providers, WC Docket No. 05-196

Dear Ms. Dortch:

AOL Enhanced Services, LLC ("AOL"), a wholly owned subsidiary of America Online, Inc., submits this ex parte letter to update the Commission on its commitment to implement an automatic movement-detection mechanism. AOL informed the Commission on November 25, 2005, that it would complete all software development and testing required to implement such a solution by December 31, 2005.<sup>1</sup>

I am pleased to report that, as of December 22, 2005, AOL has completed the necessary work and activated the movement-detection solution for all TotalTalk subscribers. Accordingly, if AOL detects that a subscriber's telephone adapter ("TA") has been disconnected from its power source and reconnected, AOL will temporarily suspend the TA's calling capability until the subscriber confirms that the TA has not been moved as described in the Motion Detection letter.

<sup>1</sup> See Letter of Curtis Lu, Acting General Counsel, America Online, Inc., to Marlene Dortch, Secretary, FCC, WC Docket Nos. 04-36 & 05-196 (Nov. 25, 2005) ("Motion Detection Letter").

This movement-detection solution supplements other safeguards that AOL has had in place since November 28, 2005, including a procedure that suspends the TA's calling capabilities whenever a subscriber indicates that he will access the TotalTalk service from any address other than the Registered Location. Similarly, AOL suspends the calling capabilities of the subscriber's soft phone if the subscriber fails to confirm that he is at the Registered Location upon logging into AOL Instant Messenger.

Consistent with AOL's commitment in our November 25 letter, AOL will make a contribution to the Public Safety Foundation, the Fraternal Order of Police Foundation, or a similar organization in an amount equal to $0.25 per subscriber for each day between November 28, 2005 and December 22, 2005.

Please contact the undersigned if you have any questions regarding the matters discussed in this letter.

Respectfully submitted,
